UP CLOSE AND PERSONAL: A spa session is an ideal gift on the Valentine's Day

Valentine's Day has always been about love, togetherness and of course gifts. Gone are the days when you could woo your partner with just red roses, chocolate, and cuddly teddy bears; these days both partners would want so much more — maybe a jab here or beauty filler there would be ideal. A derma filler, a botox injection, a hair transplant, a rejuvenating facial or a whole day pampering in a spa — these can be some of the most cherished gifts you could offer.

Dermatologist Dr Soma Sarkar Mukherji says, "Couples have a huge range of gifts that they can choose from. Since most of the procedures that involve beautification or enhancement of any particular feature of the face are lunch-time procedures, meaning that they take very little time to complete, couples are eager to take it up." The husband or the boyfriend can gift his lady love a jab of botox or a derma filler. Non-surgical and injectable treatments are a rage not just among those who are already showing visible signs of ageing but also the younger lot who just want to look their best and maybe change a little of their appearance and face, to look more attractive.

Cosmetic physician Dr Rashmi Shetty says, "Usually the husband or the boyfriend comes to us with a budget and then we design a personalised package for his partner." One of the most popular treatments is the Oxygen treatment because it does not involve injectables. People who are not comfortable with all the poking and jabbing opt for it. Explaining the treatment Dr Shetty says, "We infuse vitamins and oxygen directly into the facial skin with the help of high pressure. The active ingredients that are pushed into the skin makes it look very fresh and young."

Couples these days are keen to invest in procedures that enhance their appearance rather than spending a few thousands on jewellery. Dr Soma asserts, "Earlier these treatments were very expensive but not anymore."

Cosmetologist Dr Swati Srivastava says that some of the ideal gifts for Valentine's day would be the lip filler, a Lesobotox, Volumafiller, microderm and peels. "A Lesobotox also referred to as the dating botox gives an instant glow on the face and there is a healthy shine of the cheeks just like when you apply a blush. A filler can help to get rid of the dark and sunken under eye look. A Volumafiller can voluminise the cheeks to get a high-cheek bone effect."

If you are preparing to wear a low cut neck for the D-Day then a jab of botox on the cleavage would be a good idea to get rid of the wrinkles. "Bikini laser can get help in the reduction of hair. Body polishing, peels and microderms are great V-Day gifts as well," says Dr Srivastava.

What with a demanding job and a demanding social life, most couples these days are leading very hectic lives. The V-Day is one day when they want to spend some quality time together. The best gift for such couples would be a spa package, where they not only relax and enjoy the massages but would be spending the entire day with each other as well.

Devendra Upadhyay of Rudra Spa says that they have an offer for couples that includes a massage, chocolate wrap, facial, manicure and pedicure. Esther, who works in the spa says, "The package for couples also includes a hair wash and blow dry for only the ladies." The fact that this package is valid till the 28th of this month makes it easier for couples who would be busy on the Valentine's Day.

Ranjan Gupta, head operations of the Le Sutra says that one of their packages includes airport transfers, a special room called the Vasna room or room of love, a deep tissue massage, a bathtub that is filled with rose petals, salts, foam, aroma oil and a scented candle atmosphere. "The Angdai spa is offering gift vouchers that can be personalised and are valid for one month," says Gupta.

So, have you decided yet, on what your gift is going to be this Valentine, for your special someone?

Take that breath away

Bad breath can take away a lot from your relationships. Here are expert tips on how to avoid it...

Out of politeness I tolerated it for a while but then later I just gave up. He broke off with me when I told him about it," says a young collegian Tinkle Gada.

Experts say that bad breath is caused by improper oral hygiene. Sometimes it is also due to hormonal changes. Dr Dabholkar says, "Bleeding gums caused by abnormal chewing habits; vitamin deficiency, cancer and chemotherapy, drugs etc can lead to Halitosis." Other causes of this disease is dehydration etc.

Following simple tips can help you to avoid bad breath. So this Valentine's day make sure your breath is cool and fresh so that you can share those intimate moments.

Halitosis is a term used to describe noticeably unpleasant odours exhaled in breathing. Wikipedia says that Halitosis has a significant impact — personally and socially — on those who suffer from it or believe they do (halitophobia), and is estimated to be the third-most-frequent reason for seeking dental aid, following tooth decay and periodontal disease.

Dr Mukul Dabholkar, cosmetic dentist says, "Bad breath is one of the most embarrassing and distressing conditions, especially with today's lifestyle issues like working long hours, skipping regular meals, lifestyle diseases, systemic diseases like diabetes, hiatus hernia, liver problems, etc." He says, "The neglect and failure to attend conditions causing bleeding gums which could be localised in the mouth can cause severe bad breath."

Bad breath can cause relationship issues if not handled well. There have been instances when couple have grown apart due to this reason. "I used to have a boyfriend whose breath had this bad stench that was unbearable.

FOR A FRESHER BREATH

- Drink adequate water
- Eat low calorie small meals every 2 hours.
- Brush teeth twice a day with toothpaste.
- Use mouth-washes; change brands regularly.
- Use tongue cleaner.
- Avoid foods like garlic, alcohol, onion.
- Get investigated for systemic conditions like gastritis, hiatus hernia, diabetes, liver disease, if the condition is not caused by bleeding gums and gum disease.
